Old Water-Gate from the Victoria Embankment Gardens. Just east of Charing Cross Station we find Villiers Street and Buckingham Street, on the site of the old Palace of the Duke of Buckingham, before he went westward and built the forerunner of Buckingham Palace in 1703, which was purchased by George III in 1764. Buckingham Palace at Charing Cross stood on the site of the more ancient York House, and the picture shows the old Gate which led to the river. It was designed by Inigo Jones and bears the motto: "The Cross is the Touchstone of Faith."
